

We Love

The Vintage Royalty

Meena Osei-Kuffour,
The Vintage Royalty,
Founder

Quintessential Barrington gives a warm shout out to Chicago-based artist Meena Osei-Kuffour, founder of “The Vintage Royalty”, for the vibrant and charming lifestyle and jewelry brand she launched in 2008. At The Vintage Royalty, every piece of her wearable art tells a story that’s inspired by the past and made for the future—and sure to delight!

Osei-Kuffour’s influences include her proud Ghanian heritage, a fashion design background, and a love for vintage art. She started her business of crafting wearable art by using everyday materials including Japanese folding paper and items she could buy at Joann’s Fabrics. Each piece she sells can be a casual outfit accessory or enhance something more formal. She even makes it possible for others to make their own jewelry with her DIY Kits.

This artist and entrepreneur gives high praise to the Girl Scouts as a major influence in her childhood. For Osei-Kuffour, this was a place where she could dream, explore, and create without limitations. Check out her Jewelry and Vintage Home products at thevintageroyalty.com. Follow @vintageroyalty.

- A: The Missy.
- B: The Cher.
- C: The Thalia.
- D: The Naoko.
- E: The Virgo.
- F: Checkerboard Plate,
Vintage Home.