

Taking on Pancreatic Cancer

Have you or a loved one been affected by pancreatic cancer?

Are you concerned and wanting to learn more about the third most deadly cancer in the United States? If so, please join us on February 18 for an important discussion with a leading expert, Akhil Chawla, MD, FACS.

Early detection is crucial in combating pancreatic cancer. This devastating disease is predicted to be the second leading cause of cancer related deaths in the United States by 2030. This discussion is ideal for anyone seeking to understand how early detection can save lives—whether for themselves, their loved ones, or friends. Join us for an engaging session with Akhil Chawla, MD, FACS, a renowned Surgical Oncologist at Northwestern Medicine. Dr. Chawla will share essential early detection strategies and explore the latest treatment advancements, empowering you with knowledge to take proactive steps in health management.

There is hope through education and awareness. Take control of your health and discover how we can fight one of the deadliest cancers together.

Akhil Chawla, MD, FACS, is a renowned Surgical Oncologist at Northwestern Medicine.

Pancreatic Cancer Awareness Event

You are invited to join us!

February 18, 2025
6:00 p.m.
Barrington White House
145 West Main Street
Downtown Barrington

To RSVP to the event or if you have inquiries,
email pancanearlydetection@gmail.com,
text or call 847-347-4119

Amanda Vondrak (on left) and Deanna Stern both lost their mothers to pancreatic cancer. They have joined forces to form a new pancreatic cancer early detection advocacy organization for Barrington and the Northwest Suburbs. It is their mission to help educate others through their upcoming event and the sponsorship of this ad.